✦ Gale Moore (Sociology/KMDI) ✦ Leslie Chan (Bioline, UTSC) ✦ Stian Haklev (OISE, CTL)

Where: Ground floor of the library

When: November 19th, 12noon – 1:30pm

The entire OISE community is welcome to attend

(light lunch/refreshments to be provided)

What would an Open Access mandate mean to you?

This Faculty Council-hosted Town Hall will begin with a panel discussion featuring faculty and student participants from across campus. The Q & A will follow in which broad open access issues will be discussed, as well as the implications of a faculty mandate supporting open access. Harvard School of Education and Stanford School of Education both have open access mandates. Should OISE be the first Canadian Faculty of Education to mandate open access? Come and join the discussion and share your thoughts.

Gale Moore is a faculty member in the Department of Sociology and Senior Fellow and former Director of KMDI. She was the academic lead on Project Open Source/Open Access Leslie Chan is faculty at the University of Toronto at Scarborough. He is Associate Director of Bioline International, a non-profit international electronic publishing collaboration with the objective of improving the visibility and impact of health and other scientific journals from developing countries.

Stian Haklev is a Ph.D. candidate with OISE's Department of Curriculum, Teaching and Learning. His research focuses on issues related to open education/open scholarship.
