

Alboim, N., & McIsaac, E. (2007). Making the Connections: Ottawa's Role in Immigrant Employment. Immigration and Refugee Policy, 13(2). Retrieved March 15, 2008 from <http://www.irpp.org/choices/archive/vol13no3.pdf>

- Author (T): Alboim, N., & McIsaac, E.
- Year of publication: 2007
- Name of resource: Making the Connections: Ottawa's Role in Immigrant Employment.
- Publisher or URL: Immigration and Refugee Policy, 13(2). Retrieved from <http://www.irpp.org/choices/archive/vol13no3.pdf>

Resource Focus:

Policies

- Government

Resource Type:

- Journal article

Intended Audience

- Policy makers
- Researchers
- General public

Summary of content / Abstract

The article maintains that the federal government's decision to increase immigration targets is consistent with the traditional view of immigration as a cornerstone of Canada's nation-building. It also states that it must be accompanied by coordinated policies to facilitate immigrants' access to Canadian labour markets.