

e-Thesis Submission

Who's reading your thesis?

<http://www.flickr.com/photos/31719853@N03/3953429494/sizes//>

What You Need to Know About Going Global

As of the November 2009 Convocation, theses and dissertations must be submitted electronically through T-Space – University of Toronto's research repository. Theses and dissertations submitted to T-Space are now searchable via Google and other search engines—by anyone with Internet access anywhere around the world. This means many more opportunities for graduate students' work to be found, read, and cited.

OISE faculty, staff, and students are invited to this informative session about the new e-Thesis submission process. Please join us and ask your questions. We have the answers.

Date: November 20th, 2009

Time: 2 – 3:30

Location: KITL (3rd floor, next to the elevators)

Presenters:

Njoki Wane (Director of the Office of Teaching Support at OISE)

Sheryl Nestel (Coordinator of the Office of Teaching Support at OISE)

Julie Hannaford (Director of Information Resources and Services, OISE Library)

Meryl Greene (Academic Documentation Analyst, Education Commons)

Kristian Galberg (Academic Liaison Officer, OISE Registrar's Office)