1. Overview and Message from the Directors:

The Comparative, International and Development Education Centre is a research centre at the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education (OISE) at the University of Toronto. CIDE’s mandate is to promote excellence, collaboration, and innovation in comparative and international educational research at OISE. The CIDE community includes 51 core and affiliated faculty members; 3 adjunct faculty, and 3 visiting scholars. CIDE is the institutional anchor for OISE’s popular Graduate Collaborative Degree in Comparative, International and Development Education, which draws student and faculty from seven programs at OISE. More than 150 graduate student researchers with an interest in international issues and comparative methodologies in the field of education are affiliated to the Centre.

This year, we are pleased to present an annual report that reflects the wide range of geographic and thematic research interests supported by CIDE. We highlight in particular:

- Nine key research initiatives supported by the Centre, including research initiatives focused on Central Asia, Chile, China, Africa, and on the themes of school improvement, civil society participation in educational policy, global citizenship education, higher education, education in conflict-affected states, and the field of comparative and international education;
- A selection of internationally focused research publications, by CIDE faculty and CIDE graduate students;
- The titles of the 19 M.A. theses, 3 PhD and 2 EdD dissertations completed by CIDE students in 2009 and 2010 (as well as other student awards and honours);
- A list of the 34 research seminars hosted by the Centre between January 2009 and May 2010 – including three seminars with international speakers; 8 research presentations by OISE faculty, or faculty from Canadian universities and international development organizations; and 20 seminars focused on the dissemination of CIDE graduate student research;
- The contributions to comparative and international research being made by three visiting scholars hosted by CIDE in 2009 and 2010;
- The innovative activities of the CIDE student association, whose work has helped to build a dynamic context for research and activism among our students.

These research activities, projects and publications demonstrate CIDE’s ongoing ability to support collaboration, innovation, and excellence in comparative education research among faculty and students at OISE. As this report suggests, CIDE continues to play a critical role in the development of a thriving community of practice in the field of comparative, international and development education at OISE.

3. CIDE Research and Development Activities

1. CIDE Publication: Comparative and International Education: Issues for Teachers
   Contributors: Karen Mundy, Kathy Bickmore and Ruth Hayhoe and CIDE students Meggan Madden and Kathy Madjidi
   The “Issues for Teachers” book was initiated as a project among CIDE faculty to introduce pre-service teachers to the field of comparative and international education. At the same time, we aimed to produce a book that would be worthy of graduate study and present a picture of the overall field. The text-book was piloted in a course for teacher candidates at OISE -University of Toronto in the fall of 2006, which has now run for four consecutive years.

   Less than two years after its publication in 2008 by Canadian Scholars Press, Inc (CSPI), and Teachers College Press, we now have excellent reports of the use of the textbook outside of OISE-UT. CSPI has sold close to 300 copies through direct orders; Teachers College 867. Universities that are using the textbook include York University, Nippissing University, University of Minnesota, Hong Kong Institute of Education (Hong Kong), Hacettepe University (Turkey), and Northeast Normal University (Changchun, China), University of British Columbia, Laval, the Nova Scotia Department of Education, McGill University, Canadore College, and Wilfrid Laurier University. The book has now been translated into Chinese and published under the title Bijiao yu Guoji jiaoyu daolun: Jiaoshi Mianlin de wenti by publisher Education Science Press in Beijing.

   In a recent review of the text, Simona M. Popa writes, “The book…could not be more timely…in the context of a recent series of alarming reports on the irrelevance of teacher education programs and their continuous decline in quality. What is ostensibly a set of introductory essays to the field of comparative education emerges as a sophisticated panorama of the field, wrapped in scholarly commentaries on critical issues, not to mention key questions for reflection and discussion, full notes, lists of suggested readings, an index, and appendices containing suggested audiovisual and online resources.” Popa concludes, “Comparative and International Education: Issues for Teachers is exceptional in its coverage of the essentials of the field. It certainly makes a great introduction for newcomers; yet at the same time, because of its complexity, it could be studied with profit by any advanced scholar.” (Comparative Education Review, Vol. 53, No. 3., 1 August 2009, pp. 462-464.)
2. Book Project: Civil Society and Education: What Policy Makers and Planners Need to Know

   Contributors: Karen Mundy (author); Bronwen MacGrath (research assistant)

   This monograph to be published in 2011 by the UNESCO International Institute for Educational Planning provides an overview of the role played by civil society organizations in education, drawing both on Professor Mundy’s research in sub-Saharan Africa, and the wider theoretical and empirical research on NGOs, teachers’ unions, faith based organizations, community based organizations, parents associations, transnational advocacy organizations, among others, in the education sector.

3. Research Initiative: China’s Move to Mass Higher Education: Implications for Civil Society and Global Cultural Dialogue

   Contributors: Ruth Hayhoe (Principal Investigator), Jun Li, Cristina Pinna, Jin Lin, Qiang Zha, Ma Jinyuan, Jian Liu, Yuxin Tu

   This project included a policy study of the decision making process in China’s recent rapid move to mass higher education and a survey of 2400 undergraduate students in 12 universities in different parts of the country. A major focus of the project was on the profiles of these 12 case study universities, whose experience of the move to mass higher education is profiled in a forthcoming book: Portraits of 21st Century Chinese Universities: In the Move to Mass Higher Education by Ruth Hayhoe, Jun Li, Jing Lin and Qiang Zha (Hong Kong: Comparative Education Research Society, University of Hong Kong and Dordecht, Netherlands: Springer, 2010 or 2011. In May of 2009 a workshop was held at Peking University and all twelve of the collaborating scholars from the case study universities were invited to comment on the draft book chapters. Four collaborating scholars came to CIES in Chicago in March of 2010 to present papers that responded to the portraits and will be published in a special issue of Frontiers of Education in Education in November of 2010. In addition five publications, relating mainly to these aspects of the project, have been published, forthcoming or under review. This project has been funded by SSHRC.

4. Research Initiative: Canada-Afghanistan/Central Eurasia Education Research Group

   Contributors: Prof. Sarfaroz Niyozov, Dr. Stephen Bahry, Dr. Michael Sinclair, and CIDE students: Spogmai Akseer, Rahat Jodolshalieva and Khursandi Azizsho.

   The group worked with CIDE to host over 40 practitioners, students, researchers and policy makers for three hours of “Hard Talk” on education in Central Eurasia in October 2009. The group’s aims were to exchange critical perspectives among a broad range of stakeholders, organizations and regions. The Canada-Afghanistan / Central Eurasia Education Group has created an email list and hopes to prepare a listserv of Hard Talk Round Table participants to continue the conversation and has prepared several follow-up activities. The group has also organized a panel for the upcoming Central Eurasian Studies Society conference in October, 2010 at University of Michigan entitled: The Current Status of Education and Educational Research in Central Eurasia with Prof. Niyozov as discussant, and a paper “Challenges for Research and Policy in Establishing Quality Education of Non-Dominant Groups in Central Eurasia” by S. Bahry, and papers by Hard Talk Round Table participants from other institutions: one by CTL/CIDE alumnus Dr. D. Shamatov of University of Central Asia, on the effect of joining the PISA assessment system on educational quality I Kyrgyzstan, and another on The Open Educational Resource Movement in Afghanistan by Lauryn Oates, a doctoral candidate at the University of British Columbia who studies how primary teachers can use technologies to teach local languages.
5. Book Project: A Tribute to David N. Wilson: Clamouring for a Better World
   Contributors: Vandra L. Masemann, Suzanne Majhanovich, Nhung Truong & Kara Janigan (Eds.)

This volume was commissioned by the World Council of Comparative Education Societies, in memory of their Past President, David N. Wilson, who died on December 8, 2006. Professor Wilson was also President of the Comparative and International Education Society of Canada, the Comparative and International Education Society (US) and the International Society for Educational Planning. A call for papers was sent out to his colleagues worldwide, and many of his colleagues, friends and former students contributed chapters to this book.

David N. Wilson was educated at Syracuse University as an educational planner, and he had a lifelong career at the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education at the University of Toronto. His main interests are reflected in the five major themes in this book: Africa and Development, Technical and Vocational Education and Training, Cross-Cultural Issues, Policy Development, and Comparative Education. Each author places his or her work firmly within these areas of interest and explains how their work or life experiences were influenced by him. Several of his children also contributed to the Introduction, and Crain Soudien, the 2007-2010 President of the WCCES, wrote the Preface. Together, all of the chapters provide a fitting tribute to a man whose heart, in the words of his former student Suwanda Sugunasiri, was always “clamouring for a better world”. This work was supported financially by the Comparative, International and Development Education Centre at OISE/University of Toronto and morally by his colleagues in every part of the world.

   Contributors: Kathy Bickmore, Reva Joshee, Mark Evans (Co-Principal Investigators); Michelle Schweisfurth and Hiromi Yamashita, University of Birmingham

CIDEC and The Centre for International Education and Research (CIER) of the University of Birmingham engaged in a collaborative exchange on global citizenship education in the context of diversity, social conflict, and pluralism. CIDEC received Michele Schweisfurth in November 2008 and sent Kathy Bickmore to the UK in December 2008. Reva Joshee and Mark Evans visited Birmingham in March 2009. The final seminar took place in Toronto in April 2009, presented by Hiromi Yamashita (‘Global Citizenship Education and Environmental Risk Communication) and Russell Manning (‘Teaching History in Secondary Schools in a Multicultural and Multifaith City’). The seminar was well attended and attracted educators and PhD students from different areas of education. The visitors also visited Toronto area secondary schools (one suburban and one inner city school) and had discussions with teachers, head teachers and students, on benefits and challenges of teaching and learning about global issues at school. Plans are ongoing about future collaborative work and outputs. This work was funded by the International Council for Canadian Studies.
7. Research Initiative: School Leadership Initiative with la Fundación Chile (FC) and the Centro de Estudios de Política y Práctica en Educación (CEPPE) of La Pontificia Universidad Católica de Chile in Santiago.

Contributors: Steve Anderson (OISE), Fr. Jose Weinstein and Dr. Gonzalo Munoz (la Fundación Chile).

In Fall 2008, the CIDE Centre hosted visiting scholar Jose Weinstein, from la Fundación Chile. One outcome from that visit was the development of a research collaboration led by CIDE Faculty Stephen Anderson. Anderson is now collaborating in a national investigation of school leadership with a team of researchers from la Fundación Chile (FC) and the Centro de Estudios de Política y Práctica en Educación (CEPPE) of La Pontificia Universidad Católica de Chile in Santiago. He spent three weeks in Chile in May 2009 working with the team on the research design. While in Chile he delivered keynote addresses on the theme of school improvement at two seminars for municipal, government and university education professionals, one in Copiapó, for Fundacion Chile and Fundacion CAP, and the second for the Ministério de Educación de Chile and the Universidad Católica de Valparaiso in Valparaiso. The research study will continue through 2011. This initiative led to the signing of a Letter of Intent between OISE/UT and Fundación Chile in order to formalize and extend the partnership to other areas of collaboration, e.g. leadership training.

8. Canada Foundation for Innovation: Research Infrastructure Grant for CIDE and the CIDE Global Governance Laboratory.

Contributor: Karen Mundy

CIDE's existing “smartroom” has video conferencing technology intended to support research collaboration. However, the existing system in The CIDE Smartroom cannot stream, capture and store "live events." The infrastructure requested in this CFI proposal will support efficient streaming and capture of media from live events. It includes encoding, post-production resource management, storage and distribution via Web 2.0 technologies. Upgrading of the current distance conferencing solution will allow for web-casting and archiving of video conferencing events. In addition, the CFI grant will support upgrading of equipment in the Global Governance laboratory, including purchase of new research software, upgrading of the server, and rewiring.

9. Education in Conflict: A Tribute to Jackie Kirk

Contributors: Karen Mundy and Sarah Dryden-Peterson

Jackie Kirk (1968-2008), a prolific scholar and passionate activist, dedicated her professional life to advocating for quality education in conflict-affected countries and territories. This collection will bring together four pieces of Jackie’s work, accompanied by thirteen new chapters from preeminent scholars in the field of education in conflict. It will also include six short essays from teachers and students and policy makers who work in conflict settings. The volume will present promising policy developments, pioneering programmatic responses, and innovations in research that, when taken together, provide directions in building systemic change in conflict and post-conflict contexts. We will also explore companion multimedia such as streamed lectures from each author and a website of related resources. The volume is currently under review at Teachers College Press.

8. Visiting Scholars Hosted by CIDE

1. Vera Centeno
   Visiting Doctoral Fellow, January-August 2010
   PhD Candidate, Humboldt University

Vera joined CIDE as a visiting doctoral fellow from January to August 2010. Her time with CIDE and in Canada has been funded by. Vera’s dissertation focuses on the reception of OECD’s Recurrent Education policy in three countries: Brazil, Canada and Germany. The study seeks to identify what exactly was selected from the recurrent education reform-idea. Furthermore, it aims to carry on a comparative analyze in order to examine if there is a pattern of adoption, i.e. if it is possible to establish a relation between the adoption of RE in the three countries and, therefore, a relationship between RE adoption and social/political/cultural aspects or constellations. Using OECD’s RE policy, this research aspires to shed light on the domestic receptiveness to and adoption of international organization’s education policy reform-ideas.

2. Sarah Dryden-Peterson
   CIDE Visiting SSHRC Post-doctoral Fellow 2009-2011
   (Phd, Harvard University 2009)

Sarah joined CIDE in June 2009 as an SSHRC-funded postdoctoral fellow. Her research interests focus on education in conflict and African Diaspora communities in Canada and the United States (particularly their role in post-conflict reconstruction of education systems in their home countries. Over the past year, Sarah has been engaged in laying the foundation for her new research on the involvement of African Diaspora communities, and she has completed a study on barriers to accessing education in conflict affected fragile states sponsored by Save the Children International). She is now working on analysis of data from a three-year study in Uganda, in which I followed 60 refugee and national children and their families longitudinally, contributing to the development of a typology that identifies three different approaches to education in conflict: the international approach (international nongovernmental organization-sponsored schools); the national approach (national government-sponsored schools); and the local approach (community-sponsored schools).

Sarah initiated the “Conflict Education Group” to provide an online and in-person discussion forum for OISE community members with interests in conflict/post-conflict education. This year we had three meetings during which individual members shared work-in-progress such as research proposals and dissertation chapters for feedback and discussion.

3. Elaine Lam
   CIDE Visiting Scholar, July 2009-July 2011
   Research Fellow, Bath Spa University

Elaine Lam joined CIDE in 2009, as a visiting scholar. Elaine is a Research Fellow at Bath Spa University where she formerly led the International Education degree program and was a tenure track professor. She is currently a Senior Consultant in Higher Education at Deloitte and Touche LLP within their public sector consulting practice, and is advising a Ministry of Education funded gap closing strategy project in intermediate-senior mathematics. Elaine completed her PhD in 2009 in education borrowing in the Caribbean, and holds a MSc from Oxford University, B.Ed and B.A Hons from Queen’s University. She participates in CIDE activities and has presented in a CIDE Research Seminar.
9. The CIDE Students’ Association

Over the past year, the Comparative, International and Development Education Students’ Association (CIDESA) continued to play a major role in supporting the CIDE student body. It hosted CIDE orientation weeks in both September 2009 and January 2010, with features such as “The Great Race” to familiarized students with the UofT campus, “Ask Us” information sessions, and offered a mentorship program provided incoming students with resources to make smooth transitions to OISE. In October 2009, CIDESA took a large group of students for a retreat at the University of Toronto’s Hart House Farm. The CIDESA annual winter coffee house (“CIDE Show”) included music, art and poetry and a silent auction to support relief efforts in Haiti, channeled through the Canadian Red Cross.

Existing CIDESA subcommittees and events continued to thrive during the course of 2009-2010, including the monthly CIDE Social Justice group, periodic Town Halls and social events such as international movie or trivia nights. The CIDE SA also took a lead in hosting the March, 2010 visit of several members of the Ghana National Education Campaign Coalition by coordinating seminars and facilitating research-sharing sessions. CIDESA plans to host the first ever CIDE debate, in September 2010, to coincide with orientation week.

The organizational structure of the CIDE SA was strengthened significantly this year through behind-the-scenes administrative work that enabled the adoption of a constitution by the CIDE student body; the maintenance of a membership database to support student research interests; and the development of internet communication sources such as the CIDEC website and social networking pages. In addition, the CIDE SA created a well-organized electronic handbook that contains reports, records and recommendations from the short history of our organization. CIDESA continues to be governed by an annual elected Core Team – this year comprised of 8 Masters and PhD students, with representation from the AECD, CTL, SESE and TPS departments.
