

Julia Pan is the Senior Coordinator of International Initiatives in the Dean's Office and an adjunct faculty member in Department of Theory and Policy Studies in Education at OISE, University of Toronto. She served as the administrator of three CIDA supported higher education projects and co-director of a fourth, between 1994 and 2006. Over those years she had extensive opportunities to get to know Canadian and Chinese university scholars and leaders involved in the projects of interdisciplinary fields, including education, forestry and environmental studies. In addition, her PhD thesis, defended in November of 1995, analyzed the contributions of the projects in the crucial mid-term period between the first and second phases. It is entitled "The Role of Canadian Universities in International Development - A Case Study of the Canada/China University Linkage Program."
