ACADEMIC HISTORY

RESEARCH ENDEAVOURS

I study theatre as a powerful medium for expression by young people of their experiences and understandings. I have recently completed a collaborative ethnography on young people's theatre-making and care-taking practices in Canada, India, Taiwan, Greece, and England. I have garnered over 7 million dollars in SSHRC, Canada Foundation for Innovation, and other research funding. My current SSHRC project is a five-year, multi-sited ethnography, Global Youth \(Digital\) Citizen-Artists and their Publics: Performing for Socio-Ecological Justice in which I am looking at youth theatre practices and youth activism on climate justice. i. Education Outreach Projects and Sustained Partnerships
(Career: 11)

2022 – Consulting for People for Education first intergenerational retreat on climate crisis, global adversities and education.

An arts-community, school, university partnership has been central to my creative professional contribution. With the following professional theatre companies, school boards, and schools, I have cultivated on-going cross-sectoral partnerships.

2019- Present. Centre for Urban Youth Research. I am an Affiliate of Carleton University’s Centre for Urban Youth Research where I offer webinars and engage in strategic consultations and event-planning with international affiliates.

2009 – Present Project: Humanity Partnership

Since 2009, I have collaborated with the award-winning theatre company Project: Humanity. In my SSHRC-funded partnership sub-grant, The Temporary Neighbourhoods of Homeless Youth in Shelters 2013-2015, I worked with four members of the company and we carried out drama workshops at Youth Without Shelter, a shelter for homeless youth in Rexdale, to research and better understand their experiences of living in the shelter and working towards completing a high school diploma or gaining employment. Since 2013, I have collaborated with the company’s founding director, Andrew Kushnir, as an embedded artist in my SSHRC-funded project Youth, Theatre, Radical Hope and the Ethical Imaginary (2013-2019) to study youth as care-takers and care-receivers in their communities, the role of artistic creation in understanding their concerns, and the function of hope in their lives in socio-economically polarizing times.

2016 – Present Crow’s Theatre Partnership

In 2016, I began a partnership with Toronto’s Crow’s Theatre through a professional workshop in the development of Andrew Kushnir’s verbatim play built from my SSHRC-funded study Youth, Theatre, Radical Hope and the Ethical Imaginary 2013-2019. In November-December 2017, the company ran a two-week development workshop with professional actors that culminated in two sold-out public readings December 8th and 9th 2017. The full-scale production of Towards Youth was performed at Crow’s Theatre in March 2019 as part of their 2018/19 season. 5000 audience members saw the show, which received excellent reviews.

2014-Present Stratford Theatre Partnership

As a member of the Education and Archives Committee at the Stratford Festival (Stratford, Ontario) and a frequent speaker at public events and essayist for their production programs, I have also worked closely with Stratford’s Education Department (helmed by former student Lois Adamson) to train actors to work with young people in a variety of settings.

1999 – Present Tarragon Theatre Partnership

Tarragon Theatre was the first mid-size theatre in Toronto to develop an Education Department. In collaboration with Tarragon Theatre, I developed a program of workshops for secondary drama teachers from diverse school districts to address the Ontario Curriculum Expectations and develop curriculum for Intermediate Senior Drama Education. I conducted survey research after the inaugural year (1999) to modify and develop the workshop program to meet the needs of in-service teachers. Since 2000, the collaboration has expanded the suite of workshops to include teacher education candidates. Workshop Program includes: Improvisation; Lighting and Sound Design; Technical Theatre; Monologues; Mask Work; Stage Management; Vocal Techniques (see www.tarragontheatre.com).

2008 – Present Young People's Theatre Partnership

With education outreach director Karen Gilodo (former students), I have participated in building education programming for students and teachers to accompany each theatre season.

2003 – Present Theatre Direct Canada Partnership

I developed a relationship with Theatre Direct Canada in relation to a project they embarked on to deal- theatrically- with the challenges faced by young girls as they become adolescents. In this instance, both my theatre knowledge and gender expertise were called upon. I participated in this work as a member of the Education Advisory Group for the theatre company.

2004 – 2007 Toronto District School Board (TDSB) Partnership

Member of the Task Force for the Model Schools for Inner Cities Project, which put $7,000,000.00 additional dollars in seven identified elementary schools of high need. This work involved monthly meetings and the completion of a draft proposal presented to the School Trustees of the TDSB.

2000 – 2005 Branksome Hall Partnership

In May 2000, I embarked on a partnership with Branksome Hall, speaking to staff about my research projects examining girls' development through the arts and drama's potential as a pedagogical tool. With the school, they then moved into teacher development through classroom-based teacher inquiry. In May 2001, I began working with the school's 80 grade 7 students and their teachers to begin student research projects investigating program innovations for adolescent girls in single-gender contexts. These projects evolved into an annual research conference for middle-school students.

2004 – 2006 Durham District School Board Partnership

The Durham Board took a broad-based district-wide anti-bullying stance and I was contacted to help think through the workshop programs for their middle school students, teachers, vice-principals, and parents. I developed a 3-part workshop series titled, Power Relations in Theatre and in Life: How Should We Think About "Bullying"? The aim was to address issues of exclusion and bullying through the Drama Curriculum. The series of 3 workshops addressed the complex issues of bullying in schools by helping teachers to embed anti-discriminatory and equity-centred agendas into both their curriculum and their pedagogy.

2004 Toronto District School Board Partnership

Research Consultant for a pilot study to assess the feasibility of sex-segregated classrooms for grade 7 boys and girls in the TDSB.
