

Pamela Gravestock

Pamela Gravestock is the Associate Director of the Centre for Teaching Support & Innovation. She works with faculty, departments and divisions on a wide range of teaching-related issues including: developing learning outcomes, evaluating teaching (through dossiers, mid-course feedback, course evaluations, and on-site observations), and encouraging academic integrity. With Emily Greenleaf she recently completed, Student Course Evaluations: Research, Models and Trends, published by the Higher Education Quality Council of Ontario (2008). Pam also teaches a course on the University in Canada in the Canadian Studies Program at UofT. She holds MAs in Art History and History and a doctorate from the Higher Education Group at OISE/UT. Her dissertation research focused on how teaching is evaluated for tenure at Canadian universities.
